Don't wanna talk, baby I just wanna dance
I don't wanna talk, no more being in the past, baby
Don't wanna talk, baby I just wanna dance
And I'm not gonna stop 'til I forget what we had

We kissed in the morning on a summer day
You taste like cigarettes and hurricanes
There's a warning written in the corners of your face
Whisper and you left me in a vapour trail

Now I know it's safe to say
Nothing's perfect anyway

but I fucked up now

BORED

Quotes about the enduring nature of boredom highlight it as an insult to life, a form of ingratitude, or a symptom of being uninterested, emphasizing that one can be bored if they are a bore or if their actions amount to nothing. To avoid boredom, it is suggested to embrace curiosity, find new experiences, and act in ways that transform situations rather than simply existing

Expectation

In the case of uncertainty, expectation is what is considered the most likely to happen. An expectation, which is a belief that is centered on the future, may or may not be realistic. A less advantageous result can lead to the emotion of disappointment. If something happens that is not at all expected, it is a surprise.

The subway is more than just a place to get from one stop to another — it's the moving heartbeat of a city that never slows down. Every face you see tells a different story: the students rushing to class, the workers chasing deadlines, the dreamers lost in their headphones, the strangers who will never meet again. It's busy, chaotic, and sometimes overwhelming, yet in the middle of all the noise, there's a strange kind of poetry in the way thousands of lives intersect for just a brief moment before moving on
